1/28/02 Phoned Don about the report and his testifying. Said he did not want to, but we convinced him that we could not prevail unless he testified. Said he wanted to review the transcript and we would meet with him at his place prior to the hearing.

2/1/02 John called Sulaiman to arrange a time for Don to come by the house. Left a message. Sulaiman called back at the house and said that he could send some photographs to Don, but by the time we recieved the message, Friday was finished. Need to get back with Sulaiman and Don about getting together.

1/24/02 Diehl status- Told law judge that we had retained an expert, Accurate Plumbing and that we wanted the opportunity to review the pipe prior to the hearing. Opp. counsel said he would have pipe ready for us on the day of the hearing by 9:30. Told Don in letter that he should be in our office to prepare for hearing by 8:30 that day.

Law Tip of the Month:

What do you do if you are pulled over by a policeman and are asked to perform field sobriety tests?

Answer: Don't do them. You can refuse to do a field sobriety test in Illinois and there is no penalty for refusing. You are probably thinking that if you have not done anything wrong, why should I refuse? Because they could be interpreted erroneously and this incorrect interpretation can do more harm than good. Some of the common tests include stretching out your arm and then bringing your arm around to touch the front of your nose with your eyes closed, or jumping up and down on one leg. These are two things that you might not be able to do sober because you have bad balance or your leg was injured in football 20 years ago. What is to gain by doing these gymnastics? If you fail them, and you haven't been drinking, the police officer could testify at your trial that you were unable to touch your nose with your eyes closed, failed to jump up and down without stumbling, or could not walk heel to toe. Factor in that it might be late and you have worked a 12 hour shift and you are tired, and you might be less likely to perform
